WeWra.it is a collaborative project to create an online magazine young and dynamic. "Young", because hosts editorial contributions of high school kids, that follow specific training courses, activated with the dual aim of helping their new skills and provide tools for career guidance journalism and web copywriting. "Dynamic" because the contents of the webzine will evolve according to the interests of young publishers and readers, thus leading to the activation of new training modules related to topics of interest. WeWra.it will create also a big database of copywriters and web journalists, to help them be found by magazines, newspapers and other working opportunities.
