A MBA launches sustainable entrepreneurship : to solve real problems rather than relying on charity, to reach a global prosperity

This one-of-a-kind MBA at Colorado State University focuses on entrepreneurship and innovation. Students build triple-bottom-line businesses that solve problems in the developing world and in the US. In addition to highly applied coursework, GSSE MBA students participate in a 10-week summer practicum where they test their assumptions, gather research, make connections, and launch their sustainable venture.
