Common Good Finance is in the final stages (Nov '12) of developing the rCredits software for a robust mutual credit accounting system as the basis for creating Common Good Community. In a Common Good Community the members decide together what to fund and how to manage their local economy. We are launching in Greenfield in Spring of 2013 and expect to grow community by community rather rapidly. Our innovations are: rewards for using rCredits, sociocratic governance, ease of use, security and feedback about the use of the money created. By varying the bonuses and rebates we can encourage desirable behavior (we decide together what that is) and we can issue credit to fund desirable new ventures. We understand money an agreement to use
