

Cwm Harry Food Company

A social enterprise tackling the issues over access to affordable local foods

The Cwm Harry Food Company operates a Community Interest Company (C.I.C) that is passionate about local food. It brings small growers and producers together and offers them a collective space to market their products through. The Food Company is currently working on developing a local food hub to complement its portfolio. It has also recently registered a new coop under the Industrial and Provident Society.
