Such an ongoing vital process expects to have people participate as equals, women and men alike, in the decision making process, moving charity to dignity, towards creative economic viability. In this ongoing process people will be learning to decipher between symptoms and causes that lead to poverty and join in planning a new economic agendas, guided by the economic social and cultural HR Covenant. People will decipher the interconnectedness , interrelatedness & indivisibility of economic concerns and use this knowledge as a powerful tool and strategy towards new forms of economic development. Such fundamental understanding empowers people to chart a new future for their community and humanity. They will be learning that it is not capitalism, not socialism, neither is it patriarchy, it is human rights as a way of life, for which there is no other option.
