Business and government are working together to build a centre for the transfer of environmental technology known as the $\hat{a} \in C3TEM$ to increase the competitiveness of local industry, reduce pollution levels in the city of Mohammedia, home to the country $\hat{a} \in M$ s largest refinery, assist local enterprises in the acquisition of upgraded technology, and improve the general standard of living. The aim is to franchise the model across the world.
