

The Kwetu Training Centre for Sustainable Development

The Kwetu Training Centre for Sustainable Development focuses on training unemployed youth, women, and fishermen in conservation and income

The organization works with local groups to identify income-generation opportunities, relevant stakeholders, and available technologies to build local capacity. The training centre focuses on beekeeping in mangrove wetlands, organic farming, neem processing, fisheries, food processing, and solar technologies. Kwetu has developed a 30-minute course to educate local and international tourists about the ecological importance of mangrove forests. The organization has a range of outreach activities, including mobile libraries and mobile HIV counseling and testing.
