Started in 2006, upon the initiative of three notable Italian promoters - Federculture, Centro Universitario Europeo per i Beni Culturali di Ravello and Formez - today, Ravello LAB - International Forum has become the annual three day meeting where professionals, experts and policy makers are requested to analyse, study and promote the relationship between culture and development.

Ravello LAB - International Forum intends to be an international initiative, promoted by the civil society and in line with the European and International organisations. The Forum can also count on the active participation of private operators aware of the role of culture and creativity in the economic and social development. During the Forum, participants are committed to plan, analyse, monitor and evaluate concrete experiences in order to give policy makers ideas and solutions to be translated into concrete actions for territorial development.
