

Another School is Possible Foundation

Project author or developer:
Another School is Possible Foundation

Where:
TR / Turkey / Istanbul

Website:
www.baskabirokulmumkun.net/

A democratic and egalitarian education model focusing on participation, social justice and ecological values

Another School is Possible Foundation, whose intellectual seeds had been planted in 2009, was founded in November 2010 in order to develop an alternative school model and establish schools where this model is applied. The voluntary group started to gather in the early 2010, which also triggered the works to determine the current Turkish education system's traits that are open for improvement, offer solutions for the issues and develop an alternative school model based on systematic studies and research. Following the agreement upon the fundamental principles, the voluntary group researched, examined and was inspired by the current methods, models in the world, alternative school samples and independent applications in order to develop a model peculiar to Turkey, with the effort of its tremendously increasing number of members. In order to create an alternative to the standardizing, hierarchical and disciplinary structure of the current system in Turkey, the group developed the ASIP (BBOM) model which is based on the axis of Alternative Education, Democratic Management, Ecological Stance and Authentic Finance, and which includes alternative methods and techniques giving importance to democracy, participation, social justice and ecological values. All the works performed in ASIP Foundation depend on volunteerism.

