

BHESCo is a social enterprise bringing together the community of Brighton and Hove to increase energy efficiency, reduce fuel bills and fuel poverty, and develop community energy projects. For many years the “Big Six” energy companies have been in control of the supply of energy to most of us. At BHESCo, we feel that there is and should be an alternative to this inequitable situation. We are a social enterprise, with the experience to establish a community energy supplier, bringing people together in a collective action to take more control of their energy supply. Instead of paying ever increasing gas and electricity bills, BHESCO customers join forces to buy a share in energy projects that we develop. Instead of the profits going to shareholders, we reinvest our money by making our customers homes more energy efficient through insulation, better boilers, draught proofing etc, and we install renewable energy micro-generation at our customer’s property.

Brighton & Hove Energy Services Co-operative Ltd (BHESCo) is a consumer co-operative, an industrial and provident society, registered with the Financial Conduct Authority. BHESCo was established to help consumers lower their energy costs now and in the future by introducing energy savings and renewable energy micro-generation in communities, empowering individuals to take more control over their own energy supply.
