“The United Nations and business need each other. We need your innovation, your initiative, your technological prowess. But business also needs the United Nations. In a very real sense, the work of the United Nations can be viewed as seeking to create the ideal enabling environment within which business can thrive.” H.E. Mr. Ban Ki-moon, United Nations Secretary-General

Helping business find entry points to UN partnerships

Partnering with the UN is an important way Global Compact participants can take action to support society. Following are some of the ways that we help companies to find entry points to partnering with the UN:

Partnerships at the local level

Trainings, tools and resources

UN-Business dialogue and networking opportunities

Helping the UN system better engage the private sector

Helping the UN system better engage the private sector

The Global Compact works with offices across the United Nations system to ensure that the organization is ready and able to partner strategically with the private sector.

Partnering with the UN system to advance the Global Compact Ten Principles

The Global Compact works with entities across the UN system to mainstream the Ten Principles into how they engage with the private sector as well as their own internal UN operations. This occurs primarily through issue specific collaboration.

Collaborating with UN entities to advance the Global CompactThe UN Global Compact works with a wide range of UN entities across the system to advance its mandate. The UN and Global Commerce UN agencies, funds and programmes contribute in a wide variety of ways to creating enabling environments that promote responsible business and allow markets to thrive.
